IN THE WINTER.
(Benson's Plaster is Pain's Master.)

For coughs and colds Benson's Porous Plasters are an incomparably better remedy than any other—external or internal. Their medicinal properties enter the skin and go straight to the seat of the disease.

They relieve and cure a "seated" cold without disturbing the system or upsetting the stomach. Cough mixtures often nauseate. Benson's Plasters are medicinal in the highest degree, and quickest to act.

Placed on the chest or back or on both at once in serious cases, the good effect is felt immediately. The congestion yields, the cough abates and the breathing improves.

Lung or bronchial affections or kidney disease, are cured with the least possible suffering and loss of time.

Benson's Plasters are immeasurably superior to Belladonna, Strengthening, Capsicum or any other combination in plaster form. They are also preferable to ointments, liniments and salves.

Benson's Plasters have received fifty-five highest awards over all competitors; and more than 5,000 physicians and druggists have declared them to be one of the few trustworthy household remedies. For sale by all druggists, or we will prepay postage on any number ordered in the United States on receipt of 25c. each.

Be sure you get the genuine. Accept no imitation or substitute.

NOT IN THE INTERVIEW

The Story of an Actor, a Journalist and a Wife.

Miss Broughton waited. Through the stage door, opening and shutting every other minute, could be heard the swish and patter of heavy rain on the pavement outside and cold little gusts of wind swept in. Miss Broughton read all the brief notices pinned on the call board, and, with the impatient weariness of one who is accustomed to wait the convenience of other people, she leaned against the wall in apparent indifference to the passing of time.

In spite of all her self assurance—Alice Broughton had earned her own living for ten years, and five of those as a journalist—she trembled at the thought of a short interview with Lawrence Bright. What would he say? Would the time and the place drift away from him, as it did even now from her?

She heard the orchestra burst into a triumphal march, the play was over, and in a few seconds the inner door was opened and a young cavalier, with his great plumed hat dangling from his hand, looked out. There was no flash of recognition as Miss Broughton stepped toward him. He was frankly apologetic and unconscious.

"So sorry to keep you waiting till the end of the matinee," Lawrence began, "and even now I hardly know where to ask you—it was awfully good of you to come, Miss Broughton—you'll find me a very poor subject. Where could we talk?"

Lawrence turned his eyes searchingly for the first time on the face of the lady journalist.

"Is it possible, Alice? What does it all mean? Why didn't you send in your name? Come, you're not a real live interviewer, are you?

"As for my name, Lal," she answered, "don't you remember that I told you when we first met that 'Silverthorpe' was only assumed?"

"Then you've quite given up the stage?"

"No; it gave me up several years ago!"

"What about dreams of fame, courage, endurance? Have you forgotten how you used to lecture me in New York? I'm disappointed! Alice, will you wait ten minutes while I change? I won't be a second longer!"

With a boyish laugh and a backward look of mingled tenderness and mockery he sped away, and Alice Broughton pushed the stage door open and looked out into the dreary street. The sound of his voice, the expression of his face—so gloomy and hopeless when she saw it last—filled her with joy. All the events of seven years swiftly flitted through her mind. Alice had been a girl of twenty-three at the time when she met Lawrence Bright in New York. She was playing a small part in an English company, and he was "stranded." Lonely and alone in a great city Lawrence was drifting rapidly down the stream when the determined girl had saved him with a friendship most unusual and magnanimous. Without beauty or any charm she had won the entire confidence of a young, moody, impressionable man.

Returning Lawrence asked her to dine with him and called a cab.

"I can't take you to my place," he said. "I've only just moved into a new flat, and this afternoon is such a chapter out of my past life that I can't bear to share it—or you—with anybody else!"

"Dear Lal, you must tell me everything for the interview in our last five minutes. When did the great opportunity come? I knew you would be ready at the right minute! Do you remember when I first told you so?"

"Yes. I was in despair, and you—you were in blue muslin. Have you given up blue muslin? I've given up despair!"

The foolish words jarred on Alice, but she instinctively adapted herself to his present mood. They talked about New York, the theaters, the actors, the streets, till the lights of the Strand seemed as bright as the glitter of Broadway, and the Thames was spanned in their imagination by the chain of stars that outline Brooklyn bridge.

The little dinner party of two was a great success. As they looked at each other in the glitter of bright lights Lawrence noticed for the first time since their meeting how worn and haggard his friend had grown.

"I seem to owe all my success to you," he exclaimed.

"And I owe all my happiness to you," Alice answered.

Bending toward him, with her thin hands clasped tightly beneath her chin, she commenced to talk about the struggle and stress of her own life.

As Lawrence listened he felt more and more that her confidence was self forgetful and unrestrained. Their old positions were reversed; Alice was absorbed in the unconscious revelation of her longing for his sympathy. Lawrence grew serious; he found himself surprised into a conversation that was both intimate and emotional.

Leaning forward and listening intently, his hand rested for a minute near to Alice's arm on the table. With a rapid movement, unlike herself, she clasped both her hands round his.

"Lal, dear," she murmured, "everything has changed—my life—the world—but you are the same!"

"Just the same!" he repeated, pushing his hair back from his forehead. "But d'you know, Alice, I haven't told you anything for the interview, have I?"

"Tell me now."

"I'm afraid you have heard it all before," he went on after a pause. "Struggles, tours, the deadly commonplace! But when my chance came at last, three years ago, it was allowing to a woman's goodness—a woman of great charm, great talent. I don't know how to express it, but she seems to draw one into an atmosphere of color and fragrance; not strictly beautiful, but in her buoyant youth like a flower in bloom. There's a fine sentence for you, Alice! She was very kind to me from the beginning. I found myself getting into one good thing after another. She has always been popular, and people are good enough to rather like us both. You must come and see my wife," said Lawrence. "I have so often told her about New York. I want you to like her. I am sure she will like you."

The sentence ended feebly. Alice's face was cast down in shadow; he could see nothing but the dark outline of the drooping head. There was a long silence. When Alice moved at last, she looked inquiringly at Lawrence.

"Don't you think it is time to go?"

"Are you tired?"

"Yes, very!" said Alice.

"May I take you home?"

"No. It is late—it must be nearly your time to return to the theater. I will go with you so far."

"I'm afraid you will have to invent all sorts of things for the interview, Alice. I told you I was an awful subject!"

The cold rain was flicked against their faces; the wind blew Alice's hair in long wisps across her eyes as they drove along.

"I think I will first go to the theater where my wife is playing," said Lawrence.

Alice leaned back in her seat. The streets seemed interminable. She longed to be alone. At last their cab stopped in a narrow court; she hastily refused Lawrence's entreaty to drive home and stood facing him under the dim lamp over the stage door.

Holding her hand, even though she tried to draw it away, he thanked her once again for the sympathy of the old days.

"Good night, goodby!" was her only answer.

The next minute Lawrence was running up stairs to his wife's dressing room in the theater. He tapped and opened the door at the same time. There was a faint odor of flowers and the bright little room was scattered with pretty and costly things. Mrs. Lawrence Bright had just arrived and was standing in front of the glass. Her long, clinging dress was as delicate in tint and line as the Malmaison carnations at her breast; her thick, wavy hair looked as rich in color as old gold, and she turned to greet Lawrence with a flashing smile. After a few words he threw himself into a low chair and sat thinking. In the cold and gathering darkness of the night—now lost in shadow, now seen by the flickering gleam of the street lamps—his heart sped after Alice.

Suddenly he looked up and met his wife's beautiful eyes in the glass. A smile answered hers. Rising quickly he threw his arms lightly round her and stooped to lay her bright cheek against his own. All the shadows faded away, and Alice with them.—Mainly About People.

The Changing Flower.

During the summer of 1890 the botanists made a wonderful discovery in Tehauntepec, having established the fact beyond a doubt that the native "hinta" has a flower that changes its color three or more times each day when the weather is favorable. In the morning it is white, at noon it has changed to a deep red, at night it is blue. It is even claimed that some individual trees of this species have a flower that changes to many intermediate hues during the night. There are only two hours out of the twenty-four—from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m.—that this rarity gives out a perfume.

A JOACHIM CONCERT.

How It Was Enjoyed by a Sympathetic English Lord.

Joachim, the violinist, told with keenest relish the following joke, of which, he said, he was the victim. Whether he or Lord R. was the victim the reader will decide for himself, according to his possession or lack of a fondness for classical music:

During his sojourn in London Joachim formed a close friendship with Lord R., a gentleman much sought after by society, but well known for his antipathy to all music. Having learned that Joachim was to give a series of concerts at St. James' hall, Lord R. announced to him that he would go to hear him play.

The musician thanked him for this mark of sympathy and added that he would be charmed to know the impressions of the noble lord afterward.

Two days afterward chance brought together the two friends at an evening entertainment. The virtuoso did not fail to ask Lord R. what he thought of the works of Beethoven and if the concert had not been a little long for him.

"By no means," replied Lord R. "I have been much amused. I did not recognize you at first under your negro mask, but later I laughed the more on account of it."

A chilly silence prevailed among the guests until Lord R. explained his meaning.

It seems that Lord R. had made a mistake in the floor. Instead of mounting to the first floor, where Joachim was giving his concert, he had entered at the ground floor, where some negro minstrels were giving a performance.

Defeated by Nature.

Nutmegs grow on little trees which look like small pear trees and which are generally not over twenty feet high. The flowers are very much like the lily of the valley. They are pale and very fragrant. The nutmeg is the seed of the fruit, and mace is the thin covering over the seed. The fruit is about the size of a peach. When ripe, it breaks open and shows a little nut inside. The trees grow on the islands of Asia and tropical America. They bear fruit seventy or eighty years, having ripe fruit on them all the season. A fine tree in Jamaica has more than 4,000 nutmegs on it every year.

The Dutch used to have all this nutmeg trade, as they owned the Banda island and conquered all the other traders and destroyed all the trees. To keep the price up they once burned three piles of nutmegs, each of which was said to be "as big as a church."

Nature did not sympathize with such meanness. The nutmeg pigeon, found in all the Indian islands, did for the world what the Dutch had determined should not be done—carried the seeds, which are their food, into all the surrounding countries.

When Horses Sleep.

Horses always point one ear forward when they sleep. Exactly why this is done no human being can tell, but the probability is that the practice is a relic of the time when they were wild and obliged to be on their guard even when asleep. Cattle, on the other hand, are apparently indifferent as to the position of their ears while sleeping, but, no matter what position they are in, both are always pointed alike.

"Shut your eyes, open your mouth and see what luck will bring you."

The mother smiles at the childish game, and doesn't realize that it is a game she as a woman has perhaps played for a great many years.

Many a woman is weak and sick, nervous and discouraged. She suffers from headache, backache and other ills. She wants to be well, but all she does is to shut her eyes and open her mouth for medicine and trust to luck for results. She "doctors" month after month, often year after year, in this same blind, hap-hazard fashion, and receives no permanent benefit.

Women take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription with their eyes open to the fact that it cures womanly ills. It cures irregularity. It dries debilitating drains. It heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. There is no trusting to luck by those who use "Favorite Prescription."

"My disease was displacement and ulceration of the uterus, and I was in a terrible condition with pain and weakness and had given up all hopes of ever being well again," writes Mrs. Harry A. Brown, of Orono, Penobscot Co., Me. "Had doctored with four different doctors within four months, and instead of getting better was growing weaker all the time. I decided to try your 'Favorite Prescription,' 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and 'Pleasant Pellets,' as I had heard of the many cures resulting from their use. I bought five bottles and felt so much better after taking them that I kept on until I am as well as ever in my life, and to Dr. Pierce all the praise is due. I cannot say enough in favor of his medicines. Before I began taking your medicines I only weighed one hundred and twenty pounds. I now weigh one hundred and sixty pounds. I gained forty pounds in six months. I shall doctor no more with home doctors, as it is only waste of money. I am now in perfect health, thanks to Dr. Pierce."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets clear the muddy complexion.

ENGLISH royalty has taken off its hat to John Philip Sousa, the "American March King."

THE rain last Tuesday fell in torrents for five or six hours and started all the streams in the valley a booming. In this town the several water courses ran almost bank full and the accumulation of filth in the bed of these streams was swept with a rush oceanward. The new Board of Health made its first tour of inspection the next day. We would suggest that the City Trustees add the name of Jupiter Pluvius to the Health Board. That chap is all right.

THE Board of Health made a tour of inspection all over town last Wednesday. It was discovered that Sonoma was in a very unsanitary condition and that the accumulation of filth was not confined to any particular part of town. The Board will hold another meeting next week and action will be taken to do away with existing nuisances and improve the sanitary condition of what ought to be the healthiest town in California. Jas. H. Albertson who was appointed Health Officer last week and declined to serve has reconsidered his appointment and consented to act.

THE State Supreme Court, sitting in bank in San Francisco, on Tuesday last rendered an opinion on the lunacy laws of the State. They were very properly declared unconstitutional as a person could be railroaded into any one of our insane asylums without being given a chance to make a defense. In other words, arrest for insanity was almost equivalent to committal. The invalidating of this law was brought about by W. H. Lambert of Suisun, Solano county, who sued out a writ of habeas corpus directed against Superintendent Gardner of the Napa State Hospital. The opinion, which was written by Justice Harrison, and concurred in by a majority of the court, says among other things: "It must be held that the insanity law of 1897, to the extent that it authorizes the confinement of a person in an insane asylum without giving him notice and an opportunity to be heard upon the charge against him, is unconstitutional, and that the proceedings by virtue of which the petitioner is held by the respondent are invalid."

HOME AND CHILD

Does your horse "feel his oats"? What a difference between the grain-fed and the grass-fed horse! The first strong and full of ginger, the second flabby, weak and tired out before he begins. The feeding makes the difference.

Children are not alike either. One is rosy, bright-eyed, full of life and laughter, another is pale, weak and dull. The feeding again is responsible.

Sickly children need special feeding. They don't "feel their oats". Scott's Emulsion adds just the right richness to their diet. It is like grain to the horse. The child gets new appetite and strong digestion.

Scott's Emulsion is more than food. It is a strong medicine. It rouses up dull children, puts new flesh on thin ones and red blood into pale ones. It makes children grow. Scott's Emulsion makes ordinary food do its duty.

This picture represents the Trade Mark of Scott's Emulsion and is on the wrapper of every bottle.

THE OBSERVER.

President Roosevelt in his message to Congress recommends that immigration be more closely supervised. He seems to have grasped the full meaning of one critical situation with which our country is confronted when he says: "Both the educational and economic tests in a wise immigration law should be designed to protect and elevate the general body politic and social."

A wise immigration law we certainly need for self-protection and self-betterment. The very foundation of our government rests on this all-important question of immigration. American institutions are in the hands of the people. By the people and for the people they must be upheld. The individual is everything in American—the aggregate only what the individual makes it. Other countries legislate differently. It matters little to some of the European powers what kind of subjects dwell on their soil because these subjects have only nominal self-government. Our subjects enjoy real self government. Indeed that idea has reached perfection in the government of the United States In name America is a republic not unlike Switzerland and France. and yet how different from France with her trained administrators and social and political restrictions of all kinds.

The opportunities offered to the individual by this country are the greatest in the world. For this reason all classes of people are struggling to reach our shores. We shut the doors on none and offer them all the bounty that our generous Government affords. Is it not right then to ask of these people something in return? Good citizenship is what we must demand in order that liberty and nationality can be preserved in harmony. For good citizenship there are at least two qualifications and these our Chief Executive has pointed out. Educational and economic test must be applied to all immigrants. They must be able to understand and appreciate the protection which they are to come under, else we will find ourselves harboring droves of malcontents from all over the world. We will be forced to acknowledge that our flag floats over enemies and conspirators against law and order—criminals who take advantage of our freedom of the press and speech to perfect perfidious plots of every description. It is from the ranks of the ignorant that anarchy gets its working force. If our immigrants are enlightened enough to appreciate American institutions our country will be freed of imminent danger. A spirit of national patriotism can only be instilled in contented hearts and good heads.

The economic test applied to immigrants will keep up the standard of American labor and thus benefit the country materially. It will not force the working man of to-day to compete with unskilled labor, and labor thus uplifted can put itself on a level with the best of capital.

The recent disaster in our own harbor occasioned by the collision of two well-known ferryboats has filled the traveling public with grave apprehension and terror. We read of such fatalities in Northern, Eastern and foreign waters, but save for a casual exclamation of horror we pass them by. The scene of the catastrophe is not familiar, the victi s unknown and therefore the awfulness of the situation does not appeal to us as it should. Now we have had a dreadful happening almost under our eyes. In the wake of our own "Tiburon" two ferryboats collided in the fog last Saturday night, and only a miracle saved many passengers from a cruel death. We shudder at the narrow margin. We tremble at the very thought of the perilous situation—three hundred people fighting for life in the impenetrable fog which overhung the bay. We know the scene of this disaster and some of the would-be victims. It is not hard to imagine ourselves in a like predicament. We wonder what we should do in similar straits. We weigh our chances good and ill and then think of the thousand precautions a steamer bearing human cargo should take. It is these precautions which are going to prevent any like disasters. The future must not bear witness to parallel catastrophes, and it will not provided steamship companies are compelled to take proper precautions.

The lession taught by the collision of the San Rafael and Sausalito may be deardly brought but it may be the means of averting some other frightful fatalities on our bay. Let us have a well disciplined crew on all our ferryboats—one that will know just how to act when twenty minutes means life or death. Let all deck hands be put through a rigid drill such as is required by school children in case of fire. Trips during heavy fogs should be more carefully regulated. Ferry boats above all should not be overcrowded. During the hours from 5 to 7 P. M. the Oakland boats are often packed far above their capacity. What chance would a man have for his life if such a crowd were thrown into panic?

It matters little who assumes the authority in such matters if only the reins be held tight. The fact that accident and disaster is not common should not be an excuse for laxity, and yet the human family has a natural propensity to be entirely unconscious of well being until reverses stare it in the very face.

There were two justifiable divorces in San Francisco this week. One spouse threw oysters at his wife and another a frying pan. They ought to have pooled their issues and had a pan roast.

"Miss Stone Dead Again," is the startling headline noticed in a leading daily this week. Turkey is very thrifty to have a captive who will yield to restoratives and stand for more ransom.

The European artist who shipped himself over to America as freight got himself into a tight box. A little more and he would have been responsible for his own funeral.

A very unpretentious jackass recently chewed up a hundred dollars worth of greenbacks for breakfast. No wonder the reporter dubbed him a burro instead of a jackass.

"Governor Budd," a one time popular race horse was recently consigned to the bone yard at Petaluma. It is the old story—he went the pace.

Triplet sons were recently presented to a negro cook in Shasta county. This is a case of coon! coon! coon!

SHIP-WRECKED.

Humanity to the Rescue.

If the news were flashed across the continent that on some desolate, inhospitable shore a mother and child were ship-wrecked, it would not be an hour before relief expeditions were being planned and organized. Though the cost should be millions, though the voyage should be long and perilous, though the woman cast-away were the poorest of her sex, unstinted treasure would be poured out and life cheerfully risked to bring her back to home and happiness.

Is in any worse for mother and babe to perish of disease and hunger on a desolate island than under a sheltering roof in a civilized land? How many mothers' lives are wrecked by ill-health each year? How many infants die of innutrition annually? Why should not the story of such as these make appeal to human sympathy and stir men to organized effort for their relief.

RELIEF IS READY.

More and more with every month of every year women are learning that a call for help in their weakness and sickness will be promptly answered by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. Of the average of five thousand letters received by Dr. Pierce each week in the year a large number are from weak and sick women who ask for relief from pain, rescue from the loneliness and desolation of a life which disease has robbed of all its brightness. Every such letter is regarded as a cry for help, and the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y., of which Dr. Pierce is chief consulting physician and surgeon, is organized for the rescue of just such weak and sick women. With his staff of nearly a score of physicians, each man a specialist, Dr. Pierce responds to the appeal of suffering women as promptly as the crew of a life-boat respond to the appeal of distressed mariners. By his medicines and advice hundreds of thousands of sick women have been made well.

"I wish to add my testimony to hundreds of others as to the value of Dr. Pierce's medicines," writes Mrs. Ida M. De Ford, of Latona, Hubbard Co., Minn. "Have doctored with a great many physicians—some specialists; have twice been in a hospital for treatment. My case has been regarded as a hopeless one, and they knew not what the trouble was. Heart was bad; stomach all out of order; tired out, severe pains in all parts of the body; sinking spells and nearly every ailment a woman could have. I took many a bottle of different 'Patent medicines' without effect. I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and ten months afterward I gave birth to a ten-pound boy. All physicians had stated as a fact that I never could bear a child. Both the baby and myself were strong, and I got along splendidly—thanks to your medicine. I do my own work and feel very much encouraged. I wish all suffering women would thoroughly try your 'Favorite Prescription.'"

IS A WOMAN'S WORD GOOD?

Upon the answer to that question depends the value of statements such as those made by Mrs. De Ford. She "doctored with many physicians—some specialists," without benefit. She has "twice been in hospital." Her "case was regarded as a hopeless one." She turned to the use of "patent medicines without effect." And after all this suffering and the failures of the medicines and doctors, she was cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Any woman who can read such a statement as Mrs. De Ford's and doubt its truth casts a doubt upon the truthfulness of women at large. For this testimonial is only one of thousands written by women glad and grateful for healing by the use of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

But if Mrs. De Ford's testimony be accepted as true, what an avenue of hope it opens to the suffering of her sex, even to those who have seemingly exhausted all medical skill and medicinal means of cure.

"Over one year ago I wrote to Dr. R. V. Pierce for advice," says Mrs. R. M. Clites, of 1205 Williams Street, Omaha, Nebr. "Had been doctoring with two of my home physicians for blood poison. They did not do me much good—only for a short time. Dr. Pierce recommended his medicines and I took three bottles of his 'Favorite Prescription' and two of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and now I feel better than for more than ten years. I am so very thankful that I heard of Dr. Pierce's medicines, I cannot thank him too much for his kind advice to me." FOUNDED ON FACTS.

Every claim made for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has a cure right behind it. And behind this cure are thousands of other cures.

"Favorite Prescription" establishes regularity, dries offensive and weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It is the best preparative for motherhood; tranquilizing the nerves, encouraging the appetite and inducing refreshing sleep. It makes the baby's advent practically painless and gives the mother strength to give her child.

Sick women, especially those suffering from chronic diseases are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Refuse all substitutes for "Favorite Prescription." The only motive for substitution is to enable the dealer to make the little more profit paid by the sale of less meritorious medicines.

OF GREAT WORTH TO WOMEN.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser deals with the important questions in the fields of biology, physiology and hygiene, in plain English. Of especial value to women are the chapters treating on the care of the health, marriage and maternity. The work contains over a thousand large pages and is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the cloth-bound volume, or only 21 stamps for the book in paper covers. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

He invites the farmers of Agua Caliente and vicinity to call and see for themselves. Mr. Geisselmann sojourned several months last Summer and Fall at the El Verano Villa and liked the valley so much that he decided to get out of San Francisco and engage in business here. Pains in the Back

Are symptoms of a weak, torpid or stagnant condition of the kidneys or liver, and are a warning it is extremely hazardous to neglect, so important is a healthy action of these organs.

They are commonly attended by loss of energy, lack of courage, and sometimes by gloomy foreboding and despondency.

"I had pains in my back, could not sleep and when I got up in the morning felt worse than the night before. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and now I can sleep and get up feeling rested and able to do my work. I attribute my cure entirely to Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. J. N. PERRY, care H. S. Copeland, Pike Road, Ala.

CHANGES AT AGUA CALIENTE.

M. Zoberbier Sells Out and the California Springs Hotel Has a New Owner.

Some important changes have recently taken place at Agua Caliente. Morris Zoberbier, who has been running the postoffice, general merchandise store and roadside resort at that place for the past eight or ten years, has disposed of all his interests there to Albert Geisselmann of San Francisco, who has restocked the store with a large assortment of new and fresh goods and will improve the property in the spring. Mr. Geisselmann is an enterprising business man who has been attracted to Sonoma Valley by its future possibilities and with his push and energy he will no doubt build up a fine business at Agua Caliente right at the start.

The California Hot Springs Hotel has also passed into new hands, having been bought outright by Mr. and Mrs. Richards of San Francisco, mention of which was made in these columns several weeks ago. Mr. and Mrs. Richards, who are experienced hotel people, took possession Monday. For years this fine property has been badly managed and several fortunes have been fritted away by former owners who endeavored to run the place as a summer resort, sanitarium and bathing establishment by turns. The new owners are the only people who have ever possessed the property who know how to conduct a hotel and summer resort and under their management there is a bright future for the California Hot Springs Hotel. In common with everybody desiring to see this valley go ahead we wish the new owners success.

Arrested for Disturbing the Peace.

Louis Cross, a waiter, was arrested last Wednesday by City Marshal Albertson for disturbing the peace. Subsequently he was turned over to Deputy Sheriff Ryan who lodged his man in limbo. The aggregation of arresting officers, a night spent in jail and the serious countenance of Judge Small when Cross appeared before him next morning for trial nearly frightened the man to death. For sure, wasn't the whole world against him? Seeing he was in a hole and fearing the Judge might inflict the death penalty on him if he stood trial the "waitah" plead guilty to the charge, heaved a big sigh and Judge Small made it a fiver. Cross' offense was running a "rough house" on the public street.

Painful Accident.

Henry Weber, the well-known proprietor of the Central Market, met with a painful accident last Sunday morning. He was engaged in adjusting a heavy metal stringer of meat hooks on the wall of his market when it became unloosened from its fastenings above and struck him on the right hand. Two of the sharp hooks penetrated the hand, inflicting injuries that necessitated the calling in of a surgeon who dressed the hand. The injury, although it will deprive Mr. Weber of the use of the hand for a week or two, is not necessarily dangerous.

Vernon Goodwin Resigns.

Deputy County Recorder Vernon Goodwin has resigned his position to accept a better one as Secretary of the Santa Rosa Lighting Company. Lawrence Pressley has been appointed to the vacated deputyship by County Recorder Wright. Mr. Goodwin is well and favorably known here as an ex-Principal of the Sonoma Grammar school.

A. J. Snell wanted to attend a party, but was afraid to do so on account of pains in his stomach, which he feared would grow worse. He says, "I was telling my troubles to a lady friend, who said: 'Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy will put you in condition for the party.' I bought a bottle and take pleasure in staring that two does cured me and enabled me to have a good time at the party." Mr. Snell is a resident of Summer Hill, N. Y. This remedy is for sale by F. Duhring. *

SONOMA, SATURDAY, DEC. 7, 1901.

SOLDIERS LOVE TOBACCO.

Men Who Have Lighted Pipes During Bloody Battles.

Most of the distinguished officers of the world hold that whatever comforts the soldier on active service may be deprived of he should on no account be stinted in the matter of tobacco, and in the gravest of histories relating to the Franco-Prussian war it is stated that the total want of even tobacco to make cigarettes of among the French troops on many occasions did not a little to dispirit them.

Private Jones, who obtained the Victoria cross at Rorke's Drift, said that in the very thick of the fight several comrades lighted their pipes with blazing fragments of wood from the wooden hospital which had been fired by the Zulus, and at Majuba Hill one of the men was found dead with the stump of a cigar between his clinched teeth. Amid the awful carnage of the Russo-Turkish war Turks horribly mangled were frequently found smoking in the midst of their agony and uttering no sound of complaint.

Mr. Archibald Forbes, the great war correspondent, has told how before Metz, in the Franco-Prussian war, a soldier terribly wounded craved but one relief, a cigar, and he observed soldiers firing away at close quarters, pipe in mouth. General von Bentheim, observing a sight like this, asked one of the men for a light and himself coolly lighted his own cigar and then led his men on. Another war correspondent, belonging to one of our great daily papers, tells that he saw at Saarbrucken a large party of Brunswick hussars gallop into the thick of the fray with cigars in their mouths, and this in the face of a solid mass of French troops and a hail of bullets.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Is That All?

One of the passengers who called for a bill of fare in the restaurant of the railroad station at Calais one day was a tall, elegantly dressed, majestic looking foreigner. His appearance made a stir among the waiters, but he insisted on seeing the manager. When the latter came in, the stranger asked him to enumerate all the good things that his menu contained. The passenger's request was complied with, with smiles and bows, and then, according to Italie, the following dialogue took place:

"Is that all?" said the unknown man.

"Yes, sir," answered the maitre d'hotel bashfully. "But I can assure you, sir, that we have served persons of the highest distinction, and they have all been well pleased with our menu."

"Persons of the highest distinction? But you don't know who you are talking to, do you?"

"No, sir; I admit I don't," resentfully.

"I am the Prince of Bulgaria."

"Is that all?" said the hotel keeper, with studied indifference.

No Cork Legs.

After an experience of something over thirty years as house visitor in one of the largest of our provincial hospitals I may say no such definition as "a cork leg" has been known in the surgical profession during the whole of that time.

The expression, now practically obsolete, no doubt originated in the fact that artificial limbs were formerly made of steel or other metal uprights, shaped up by layers of cork, but for the last fifty years at least these substitutes for nature have always been constructed of wood—willow by preference, because of its lightness and stability—covered with leather. Cork is never used. The working joints are, of course, of finely tempered steel.

There are, I understand from one of the oldest and best known manufacturers of these appliances, certain kinds of legs known specially in the trade by the names of inventors or distinguished wearers. The term "a cork leg" is, however, only used today, if used at all, by rank outsiders.—Notes and Queries.

Poisons.

The most familiar poison is probably morphia or some similar narcotic. Prussic acid is the most rapidly fatal of all poisons in its action. Chemical tests can now be applied to detect with great certainty poison in food or water and in the body after death. If scientific examination and judicial inquest be possible, almost any poison can be detected after death, either by the lesions produced in the organs affected or by the extraction from the corpse of the victim of the poison itself and by a study of the properties. As for poisoning being a lost art possessed in a higher degree of perfection by the Borgias and others, that belief is a fancy. The people of any other age could have taught us nothing new in that regard. The poisons of the Borgias would not now be considered beyond detection or, in fact, at all difficult.

A Good Cough Medicine.

[From the Gazette, Toowoomba, Australia]

I find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is an excellent medicine. I have been suffering from a severe cough for the last two months, and it has effected a cure. I have great pleasure in recommending it.—W. C. Wockner. This is the opinion of one of our oldest and most respected residents, and has been voluntarily given in good faith that others may try the remedy and be benefited, as was Mr. Wockner. This remedy is sold by F. Dubring.

Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions, which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants, fumes, smokes and snuffs and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and will cure catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. A trial size will be mailed for 10 cents. All druggists sell the 50c. size. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N.Y.

The Balm cures without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation.

With Ely's Cream Balm you are armed against Nasal Catarrh and Hay Fever.

WOMAN'S RELIEF

A really healthy woman has little pain or discomfort at the menstrual period. No woman needs to have any. Wine of Cardui will quickly relieve those smarting menstrual pains and the dragging head, back and side aches caused by falling of the womb and irregular menses.

WINE OF CARDUI

has brought permanent relief to 1,000,000 women who suffered every month. It makes the menstrual organs strong and healthy. It is the provision made by Nature to give women relief from the terrible aches and pains which blight so many homes.

GREENWOOD, LA., Oct. 14, 1900.
I have been very sick for some time. I was taken with a severe pain in my side and could not get any relief until I tried a bottle of Wine of Cardui. Before I had taken all of it I was relieved. I feel it my duty to say that you have a wonderful medicine.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:
BALTIMORE, Md., March 30, 1901.
Gentlemen:—Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.
About five years ago my right ear began to sing, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.
I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.
I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain Very truly yours.
